CRUISIN' is an energetic and exciting new musical with songs in the style and spirit of the pioneers of rock 'n' roll. It is filled with comedy, pathos and catchy songs that will leave audiences enthralled right 'til the end.

CRUISIN' is set in the late '50s about an immigrant Italian family landing on the shores of Australia with the prospect of adjusting to a new lifestyle and culture.

Vinnie Russo, the 17-year-old son of a traditional Italian businessman, is torn between his love for music and his family traditions – his father says he is wasting his time with "crazy rock 'n' roll music" instead of concentrating on his Italian heritage and a solid career in the family smallgoods business.

Conflict comes to a head when Maria, Vinnie's younger sister, leaves home to be with Phil (the guitarist and lead singer in the band CRUISIN') and Vinnie joins the band.

It takes courage and determination for their mother and an old friend Johnny Angel to convince their father that this "crazy rock 'n' roll music" may not be such a bad thing after all.

Eventually the traditional family values stay intact and the Russos come to terms with the Australian way of life. Music becomes the instrument of reconciliation, bridging the generation gap and creating a new cultural harmony and optimism for the future.

CRUISIN' was staged in Sydney to capacity crowds. The Sydney Morning Herald described the show as "FOOTLOOSE meets THE SHIFTING HEART" and "CRUISIN', the new Australian musical is the best culture shock this season."

CRUISIN' is a show that appeals to all ages and cultures.
